FOB INFANTS—It is invaluable; for the large proportion of phosphates (bone earth) contained in it promotes free growth of the testin and boxes, and much beseens the pain of testining, which is often estuded by a deficient supply of this necessary insterial.

material.

FOR CHILDREN—It is a very useful diet; and should always be used in preference to white starch foods, much as corn flour, &c., which are dedicant in muscle and hone-forming materials.

FOR INVALIDS—It should always be employed in place of arrotroots, as it is far more nourfshing, and is often reliabed when all other food is instantly rejected.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON BOARD A MURRAY RIVER
FRAMER.—A correspondent of the Pastoral Times writes from Tooleybue:—"The Murrumbidgee, Captain Bower, passed here lest night (7th September), and I much regret having to report a sed accident which occurred during her passage, about minety siles below Echucs, on board that ravourite atsenuer, and wicho has oamsed the disapparamee and almost to a certainty the death of the engineer. It appears that while Mr. David Weir, the engineer, was standing at his post in the engine-room the weight on the safety valve became detached, permitting the escape of the steam under a high pressure. This, of course, drove him from the room, and he must have stumbled overboard, as nothing was seen of the unfortunate man siles the occurrence.
Captain Bower used every exertion to recover his remains, but without swall; and as the place where he must have fallen into the river was immediately in front of one of the paddle-wheels, between the vessel and the barge, it is more than likely that the poor follow was killed or atunned by a blow from the wheel; therefore it may be some time before his remains will be discovered. Mr. Weir was a resident of Bebues, and musch liked by all who knew aires.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1871.

A RECENT judgment in the Supreme Court affects so seriously the tenure of land in this colony that it ought to be considered by the Parliament. We cannot indeed assume that the opinion is final, since it is not unanimous. Nor was the statement of the law by two of the Judges given with that certainty and decision which is essential where a great and daily recurring question is concerned. They are not responsible for the phraseology of an Act, or for its failure to convey cleafly and perfectly the intentions of the Legislature. We do not, of course, pretend to give any opinion on the import of the law itself, or make any comparison between the Judges who have so seriously differed. We may, however, remark that whether the law in reality favours the rich man or the poor man, though a most serious question for the Legislature, is not a matter for the consideration of the Courts. Oppression is not always on the side of the rich. Assuming persons to come under the denomination of the poor, without defining what is really poverty, Governments and Courts may do injustice by the exaggeration and perversion of sympathy and compassion.

As we once understood the law, its object was to restrain as well as permit free selection, to break up the monopoly of land, and to prevent it in the future. It was intended that any man might acquire a homestead on easier terms, but that he might not enjoy that privilege beyond 320 acres; that he could not hold it as a speculator in land, but must occupy and cultivate; and that he could not simul-privilege beyond 320 acres; that he could not hold it as a speculator in land, but must occupy and cultivate; and that he could not simultaneously take up more than this limited quantity. The object of the Government was not to sell land for the best price. It was intended to enable every man who made cultivation his object to occupy and improve the land. Whether he was able or not to pay the full price at once, he could only obtain a perfect title after a certain time, and in virtue of certain title after a certain time, and in virtue of certain acts to be done.

The decision of the Court, however, implies

The decision of the Court, however, implies that there is no limit whatever to the occupation of land by one man, providing he applies in the names of others, whatever their relationship or age. The instance given is, indeed, very remarkable. A child three years and a half old, according to one statement, is made the principal in an application to the Crown Lands Office; as a free selector. The opening is whether he is each blee fulfilling. Crown Lands Office; as a free selector. The question is whether he is capable of fulfilling the legal conditions. These require that he shall reside on the land, that he shall improve it to a certain extent, and that he shall give proof of these facts when called upon to do so. Occasionally a family, consisting of ten children, are under ten years of age. According to the construction of the law, the father, acting for all these children, might obtain free-selections amounting to 3200 acres besides his It is asserted that the age of the own. It is asserted that the age of the children is of no importance whatever, they being all "persons" in law. It is, however, required tha they shall reside separately on their selections. But this would seem to present no serious difficulty. A special construction of the term residence is required. How feeble a protection against the evasion of this condition the Government can possess is well known to those who administer the Land Law. It is mere credulity to suppose that it is performed in any serious sense. What public object is gained by carrying a babe over a farm, or even lodging him in a hut? What moral end is promoted by removing a child of four years old from his parents in order to evade the intention of the law by a compliance with a certain construction of its letter? In some countries there are regulations which creating to the number of chil. well known to those who administer the Land grant land according to the number of chil-dren possessed by the claimant. If this was the notion of the Legislature, would it have made separate residence necessary? Would it have required each person to reside under a separate roof if it had not intended to check a concentration of more land than 320 acres in the possession of one?

In our opinion, the only idea which the Legislature could have of the meaning of a "person" was an individual capable of separate acts, and of understanding and fulfiling the terms of a contract. It might not be politic to confine this power to the legal age. It might have been inconvenient to fix an age when persons should acquire the capacity to take when persons should acquire the capacity to take the advantages of the Land Act; but it is a monstrous absurdity to suppose that a child can do this—that at a time when children can hardly talk or walk they should be invested with an estate by the colony when the only object that could be contemplated by the law was to such a present to be settled upon the soil who that could be contemplated by the law was to enable persons to be settled upon the soil who were capable of its improvement.

One intention of the law was to restrain the acquisition of land, by giving particular advantages to one class of holders to the exclusion of another. The plea for passing this Act was that a poor man was thwarted by a rich one, that he had to face a competition which prevented his ever gaining land but at a high price. He was therefore permitted to go and mark out any Crown lands, and by notice to make himself the conditional purchaser. But he was limited to the number of acres, professedly that other poor men might have the sane chance. It was said that it was a cruel thing to monopolise land and to shut out new comers by an extravagant occupation. It is quite that the child left in the street is ruined. In the interests of their own class, therefore, a readiness was found in this grade of society for that interference with the liberty of the individual implied in compulsory education—in fact, intervention of the State between the child and the parent, for the good of the former, by the Factories Bill, had been more opposed by an extravagant occupation. It is quite monopolise land and to shut out new comers by an extravagant occupation. It is quite clear that the object in making a child in arms a free selector had precisely the same effect as the monopoly the law was intended to destroy. A poor man, for instance, will go upon the land and peg out a selection; but he would be told that that belonged to the infant Peter. He would go a little further and be told that that was set apart for the child Thomas. Still in search of a homestead, he would reach the selection of the girl Betsy; and so on till all the family were represented. Thus, under the very cover of the law, meant to give a limited but equal right to all "poor men," the poor man would find himself shut out by the grasping monopolist of his own men," the poor man would find himself shut out by the grasping monopolist of his own nominal order.

We are not called upon to estimate the force of an antecedent judgment given by our Supreme Court on which it has assumed that infancy is no bar to free selection. But suppose it is not a bar in words, it may be in the very conditions which are required to be fulfilled. In times when Governments did what they pleased, they gave commissions in the army to children is the nursery. There is no limit now that we are aware of fixed by law to this discretion; but the common sense of mankind will say that the appointment of such defenders, and their payment from the public purse, was simply a fraud. But according to the late decision a free selector who is bound to do, within a certain time acts necessary to to do, within a certain time, acts necessary to his title may be a mere babe, and have advantages to encourage his cultivation of the land, and his settlement of the country. The very things that he is expected to do certainly imply that he should have the physical power to do them; and any other condition must only lead to an absolute contravention of the spirit of the

We repeat, of the judgment we have nothing to say. Of the soundness of this or that legal opinion we do not profess to decide, but if the opinion we do not profess to decide, but if the law be as stated then the legislators who made it were arrant fools.

Dispanation things have been said of the Reformed Parliament of Britain, but, judging from results, they appear to have been far from warrantable. In no similar period of time has so given an advance been made in questions of Civil and Religious freedom, and others affecting the social improvement of the people, as during the reign of the new Parliament. The men of Progress, who struggled/for ap enlargement of the franchise, have been able to carry great measures required by the state of the country, which they could not have carried except by the additional votes the Reform Bill brought to their support. The Irish Church Act could not have been enacted by the former Parliament. The same may be said of the Education Act, and of the abolition of the Purchase system in the Army—these and many measures of the same may be said of the Education Act, and of the abolition of the Purchase system in the Army—these and many measures of the same progressive kind, would have failed of success, had not their advocates strengthened their position by forces gathered from without. Judging from such Jeremids as were addressed to Parliament by Sir Bulwen Lytron and Mr. Diskaell in relation to the Reform Bill of 1866, the belief seems to have prevailed amongst the Conservatives that those who were to be admitted by that Act to the electoral lists, could not be expected to legislate for their own education, and that consequently the measure was all too seon. It would be madness, they said, to make the working class a sovereign constituency of a Legislative Assembly until a general system of education had been established, and the leaven of knowledge had had time to work. Education must precede democracy. That was the demand. The class from which this demand came did not appear to see two things:—first, that but for their determination to uphold a dominant Church, and to make any national system of education subservient to it, the education of the precede might have been accomplished long. education subservient to it, the education of the people might have been accomplished long before; and, second, that one of the avowed objects of the reform party was to attempt national education in the largest sense of the Bill against which even Mr. Lows lifted up his warning voice? Why, it is the institution of a system of a much more arbitrary character than was contemplated by the Conservatives. If it is a piece of class legislation, and emanates from the party admitted to the franchise in 1866, that party must be acknowledged to be severe upon itself—for the education they prescribe is compulsory. Five years ago he would have been a bold man who should have would have been a bold man who should have predicted that in 1871 a School Board would be sitting in London for the purpose of organising a School Police to cry "All in!" All in!" to the mudlarks and ragamuffins of the metropolis. But so it is: the impossible is realised; and actually the asperities of sectareasised; and actuary the asperties of sectarianism are softening down under the prevailing desire to institute a better remedy for the pauperism and crime that blacken the annals of the time. The result has proved that the section of the British nation generally denominated the people deserved greater confidence in this question of education. They hastened at once to amend the greater confidence in this question of education. They hastened at once to amend the detects of which they were conscious. Not even Mr. Lew'e's Revised Code, which instituted "payment by results" was quick enough in its operation. "Fifty years hence," they replied to him, "when your Revised Code may have diffused education through the whole country, the present generation of presents. country, the present generation of parents will be in their graves, and their grand children will be past the school age. We cannot afford to wait. Besides, until l'arliament, by means of the general enlighten-

Parliament, by means of the general enlighten-ment of the people, can give health, strength, providence, and self-control, how can it deal with the evil of pauperism?—for if the children be not taught they become thieves-and paupers." There was no reason to expect obstruction from the working classes. They were only too anxious to stop the contest that was waging above their heads about which eect of the Church should have the training of them, while they were perishing in darkness below. while they were perishing in darkness below. The fact of their being uneducated themselves made them the more desirous of school made them the more desirous of school training for their children. They entertained the same opinion of schooling as the Irishman, who, when asked whether he thought reading and writing was of any use to people like him, said—"To be sure I do. And do you think that if I could read and write I would be shoved into every dirty job as I am now? No, sir! instead of driving the horse, I'd be riding him." The school is regarded as the stepping-stone to advancement.

readinces was round in this grade of society for that interference with the liberty of the individual implied in compulsory education—in fact, intervention of the State between the child and the parent, for the good of the former, by the Factories Bill, had been more opposed by the manufacturers than the workpeople. It was scarcely to be expected, also, that opposition would come from working men to liberal expenditure on education from the public revenue for the benefit of their own class. And should ever a larger—a truly national scheme of education—be devised for England, and it is not far distant—we believe that its strongest support will come from below—not, of course, from the lowest stratum, but from the intelligent, thrifty, working man.

In our jesterday's notice of the scheme of the intelligent, thrifty, working man.

In our jesterday's notice of the scheme of education adopted by the London School Board we dwelt upon the liberality of the curriculum. A good deal of debate was aroused upon certain parts of it. We teld how the religious difficulty was overcome, and arranged to the satisfaction of all parties. The teaching of history was another point that split opinion; but it was finally determined that it should be confined to the history of Britain. An unsuccessful fined to the history of Britain. An unsuccessful attempt was made to remove drawing from the list; but Professor HUXLEY battled so strongly for it that it retained its place. He very truly said that the teaching of drawing was of the first importance, not only to those gifted by nature for a taste for art, but to all others, to girls as well as boys. Every one could be taught drawing, and the ability to draw was certainly a great aid to all classes of work people who have reason to understand a plan or follow a design. The attempt to limit the teaching of drawing to the senior boys schools was unsuccessful, and Miss Davis came with well timed support of cogent arguments for the girls, who would thus have been excluded from the advantage. By a plausible proposition in the general meeting it was attempted to introduce some phases of household economy into the senior girls' schools; but Mrs. Andreson, proved her right to a seat the Read her right to the seat the Read her r fined to the history of Britain. An unsuccessful duce some phases of household economy into the senior girls' schools; but Mrs. Andreson, proved her right to a seat at the Board by virtue of the good sense she displayed in show-ing the impracticability of the proposal. She ridiculed the idea of teaching cooking and laundry work to girls of thirteen, and happily quashed it.

At the request of the Charman, Mr. Minner Stephen and some of the details. He explained that nearly two years ago he had submitted to some leading men in the city the importance of forming such an association, and that been perused by Mr. J. B. Watt and others, at the time when a valuable letter from Dr. Creed had been published, followed by other writers, suggesting a very similar association. The attention of the public had thus been so far awakened to its importance, that another company had been proposed, of which a greatlemen present had agreed to become a provisional director to carry out General Ministry from owners of ministry property and claims, asking his assistance in working and developing diamond, gold, copper, lead, and tin mines: with he read extracts from one or two—cuniting names—proving the want of some such association.

The subject was then discussed, and all present agreed that it would be wise to combine the energies of all parties in astabilishing one straone contant.

The following resolutions were then moved and carried in astabilishing one straone contant.

It is obvious that property, after having been requently advertised or fruitlessly offered for sale by public auction, becomes despreciated in general estimation, while, on the other hand, it is clear that private purchase is often of adventage to buyers, in enabling them to secure more equitable terms than may be obtainable in the heat and haste of an auction room.

The Private Disposal of Property, therefore, offers advantage alike to buyers and sellers, as a medium course, and upon the whole the most reliable means of selling and purchasing at the real value.

QUERNALAND.—Our files from Brisbane are to the 18th instant. A Ecchanpton telegram to the Cherier states that the Springsure down-mail was stuck up six miles west of the Dawson on Wedneday last. The rollier, who was armed with a double-barrelled gun, carried of the mail-bag on a saddle horse, and it was found by the mailman tied to a tree about two miles from Gainsford. The mailman had not the Barcoo mail with him when he was stuck up, as he had waited two hours for it, and had ultimately to come away without it. The Municipal Council of Rockhampton has voted the sum of $250 to the Mayor for the purpose of providing a banquet to His Excellency the Governor, and to which 200 persons, ratepayers and others, are to be invited.

COLONIAL EXPERIENCE.—The Lower Lachlan

COLONIAL EXPERIENCE.—The Lower Lachlan correspondent of the Wooga Express relates that a shert since a young continues, from the old country, strived in this neighbourhood for the purpose of gaining a little colonial experience. For some time previous to his arrival a wild entire had been in the habit of frequenting at tight the place be was staying at, and did a great deal of damage to the working horses, tearing some and driving others shout the run to such an extent that, when wanted, it often became an exceedingly difficult matter to find them. Our young friend undertook to destrey the suswelcome visitor, and, with this intent, armed himself with a gue, and issued from the house a little before the break of day. He scan found the horses, and, otherwing one larger than the rest, and shanding a little alone from them, he snasked cautionally up to within range, brought his gaun to the shoulder, and pulled the trigger. Down went the horse; but, instead of the wild entire, it trund out to be one of the best draught horses on the station. "Colonial experience" has not been out shooting since.

PETITION FOR TAXING DOGS.—Mr. Lockhart, the Albury Sheep Inspector (the Banner states), has taken in hand the preparation of a petition representing the depredations to which flockowners are subjected by the destruction of sheep by "tame dogs," and praying that a bill may be introduced to provide a Legislative remedy for this wide-spread cvit. The petition concludes with a suggested outline of measures which would be likely to effect this object, and among them it is recommended that a tax of 2s. 6d. be put upon dogs, and that all such animals should be required to Lave a collar bearing the name of their owners; also that cortain powers should be given for the destruction of unregistered dogs. Some stringent measures of this kind are now absolutely necessary to protect the flocks, and the petition will doubtless be numerously signed by squatters and selectors in whose behalf it has been especially drafted.

The Tichbonne Case.—We (Wagga Wagga

numerously signed by equatters and selectors in whose behalf it has been especially drafted.

THE TICHBOINE CASE.—We (Wagga Wagga Advertiser) learn that the local supporters of the Tichborne chainsant believe that they have at least secured the "right man"—the veritable Arthur Orton—in this colony, and not in Victoria, and are jubilant on the supposition that they have arrived at a satisfactory explanation of the apparent anomalies that appear on the face of the evidence as yet. We are not yet in full possession of the facts, but are assured that a very few days will solve the mystery.

DIRCOVERY OF STOLEN JEWELLERY.—On the 19th July least (says the Argus), during the absence in the middle of the day of Madanue Diana de Beaumont from her dwelling in Russell-street, the place was entered and an iron asis, containing iewellery, said to be altogether worth about $300, were taken, but no trace of the property was obtained until a few days ago, when a earch warrant was issued, and detectives Williams, Mackay, and Daly went to a house in Little Bounke-street, where they found nearly the whole of the property. One brooch had contained 38 diamonds, and the that fook out the preclous stones, sold the setting as old gold, and conosaled the gens in a gimlet-hole pierced in the few of a stool, and stopped with putty. The delectives got these diamonds out of the grint-hole. They arrested two mean, named John Stephens and Daniel Evans, on a charge of excelling the jewellery.

got these diamonds out of the similet-hole. They arrested two men, named John Stephens and Daniel Evan, on a change of etealing the jewollery.

THE CREBERUS.—The Melbourne Argus of Monday says:—The guns of the Cerberus underwent their first reak test in Victorian waters on Saturday last, and the result not only demonstrated the scoellences of the ordinance, but, in no slight degree, the good training of the men now composing our Naval Reserve. The Cerberus arrived at hor anchorage in Hobson's Bay on Friday, and at noon on Saturday she weighed anchor and steamed out for the purpose of Sking a target. The operation, as well as that of putting the docks in apple-pie order, was well performed by the sheleton erwer of the monitor and sixty boys of the Nelson training ship, whom Captain Panter has had on board ever since the Cerberus left for Geolong, and whose services he raice very highly. The target was the same cauvas cone used before, and it was moored at a point where no danger could he apprehended from firing. At 2 pm. the monitor was in Hobson's Bay again, and took in her division of the Naval Reserve. This division consists in right of 90 men, 45 to each turret, but on Saturday only 39 men put in an appearance. 23 Sandridge men, under Lieutenant Sciole, manned the aft turret while 16 Williamstown men, under Lieutenant Kaller, manned the fore turret. The guns were loaded each with 40 lbs. powder, and a 400-lb. shell, containing 28 lbs. pewder as a barsting charge. The first two shots were fired at 2500 yards by the Sandridge men, but the windage had accarcely bean accordanced, and both shots full a Hitle to the right of the object, the first several hundred yards short. The Williamstown men then fired two shots at 2000 yards, and the windays ascertained, the improvement was evident. Certainly the last three shots would have hit a vessel of the size of the Nolson, whereas the target was a mere glimmering speck on the water, not more than 18 feet wide at its base. A last shot was fired from the Williamstown tur

MERCANTILE AND MONEY ARTICILE. THE Customs duties received to-day were follows:

Total 22006 13 1

We understand that since the arrival of the steamship Nebrask's negotiations were opened for the sale of wool, resulting in transactions to a very large amount. Since the auction sale on Thursday of a portion of the Mary Blair's cargo of tea there has been some inquiry, and several lines by this vessel were sold privately at a price withheld. Sugars remain dull, with nothing doing. The Cyrus, from Mauriticato Sydney, was telegraphed off Cape Otway yesterday, and may be expected here at the end of next week. The breadstuff market continues without animation. Holders of wheat ask 5s. 6d., but no transactions have taken place during the week. Superfine flour may be quoted at £13 10s. to £15, with a very dull market. The cargo of New Zealand wheat, ex Lady Franklin, which arrived a day or two back, has been stored.

The Western escort arrived to-day with the following quantities of gold:—Sofala, 701 oz. 11 We understand that since the arrival of the

We have Melbourne papers to the 19th instant. The Argus of that date reports:—

In the import markets business for the week has commensed with a somewhat poor prospect, the sales effected to-day having been of very little account indeed. The state of the weather throughout the entire day, however, has doubtless had something to do with the extreme dainses which has prevailed. He eastsuffe show no improvement, and for flour it is almost impossible to give a reliable quotation. We confine to quote £14 to £14 100, but for local requirements there is searely any inquiry. Orders have, however, come in for ahlyment, and we helieve a few small parcels of Adelaide have in consequence been soid in bond for expire, Acclaide where the same the same extent also pending. Both Afraid on access, business to some extent also pending. Both Afraid engineering the latter about 1000 bags will be submitted to public competition. Cats are extremely heavy, the utmost difficulty being experienced in making sales. Most of the recent shipmen's to hand will have to be stored to wait a better market; for low to ordinary feeding we continue to quode is to 3s 2d, but we understand that for a mixed sample disposed of 3s 64/4 was realized. We observe that the shipment of 000 bags, mentioned at 60 5 Md. Sugara maintain an aspect call and account of the same and the public sales continue will be disposed of . The only business reported in test is the auction sale of 176 packages congous and colonys, ex Australiad, which were all disposed of as damaged. Small parcels of low conques liver waterly, and we learn that negotiations are also of the part of the WAVERLEY,—A meeting of this Council was held on Tursday evening, the 19th instant. Present—The Major (Mr. W. Cary), and Alderman S. Dickson, J. Birrell, D. Fletcher, R. Yeend, C. J. Stephens, J. Maopherson, and L. Baglin. The minutee of previous meeting were read and continued. Correspondence read: From Mr. W. R. Gullick, offering to supply the Council with waits meful. Special business: The Mayor laid upon the table the half-yearly balance sheet duly audited by Missars, J. B. Holls-worth and J. Sanda, with an explanation from those gratismes that in consequence of recount illness the completion of sudit had been delayed. Notices of motion: In pursuance of notice it was moved by Alderman Yesud and seconded by Alderman Birrell.—"That this Council deem in necessary owing to its fuancial position to obtain the services of a Council Clierk for the second 250 per annum, with the use of the Council Chambers to reside in; and that the precent Council Clerk, Mr. Mordiner, reserve three months notice, in wridag, from the Mayor of the Council's intention." After one-siderable discussion upon the motion, it was ruled out of order. Upon the motion of Alderman Yeend, soo anded by Alderman Dickson—"Resolved that the sum of £15 be voved by this Council for repairs to Nolson Bay Rusd." This concluded the business of this moeting.

A CONSIDERATE CRITICISM .- PATTI IN "LES

quote one other similar crime in the Chinese annals.

A CALLPORNIAN, whose wedding day was fixed, did not appear at the appointed time and place, but sent a note to the clergyman saying that he had just received a letter from his wife in the East, and thereby had his mind recalled to the inct that he was married several years before—a circumstance which had entirely escaped his memory.

Naven have evening dresses been made up in a more outrageously decolleté style than now. Decesses have been worn this winter which would more appropriately have graced South Sea Islanders than modest woman. It is time that maids and mistrons understood that a lovely figure is none the less fovely for being delicately veiled, and that the admiration excited by its ridiculous expesure is the poorest of compliments. There is not even a man in the world who does not feel a mild contempt for a woman, after seeing her in this sort of garb.—English paper,

In bringing these well-known properties forward for public competition, RAYNES, TRREVE, and CO. desire to remind the trade, and those looking for really good openings, that such opportunities as are now offered are not likely to recur. The shops of M'Carroll are thoroughly established, they occupy the leading positions in the localities in which they are situated, and from the complete knowledge of the requirements of the business are most thoroughly fitted with the necessary appliances. Perhaps no finer property of the kind than the celebrated WHITE, CHAPEL property is to be found in the colonies. The sale is persupporty, to close accounts, and attention is particularly directed to this fact. The fullest information may be obtained from the Auctioners.

The grounds contain an area of 6 acres 2 roods 38 perches, extending from the Scuth Head Road to high water mark on the fine sandy basch of Double Bay, to which, as well as to the road, they have a very large frontage. The site is one of the best selected and most valuable on the Point Piper estate, opposite Granbrook, the seat of the Hon. Robert Towns, and surrounded by the gardens and grounds of Rediesf, Glenyarrah, the properties of William Walker, Req., and the Hon. S. D. Gordon. It adjoins also Colonel Richardson's property, eccupied by R. C. Want, Eaq.

The approach to Buckhuret is by a wide carriage drive, lind of natural beauties unequalled from any point on the shores of Port Jackson. The walks, lawns, abrubbertes, bounded by the smooth, anady beach, are very attractive, and a great deal of good taste is displayed in not disturbing the thing-house.

To carry out the instructions in the testator's will with regard to reinvestments in England, the executors of the late Mr. Walker are absolutely bound to realize this irrst-class suburntan estate. The sale affords a splendid opportunity for securing a gentleman's residence perfect in its arrangements, massively built, quietly decorated, and surrounded by favourably situated grounds in the laping out of which slegames and good taste are compiguous.
